Thanks to the Weather.

By JOANNA SINGLE.

Copyright, 1907, by E. G. Parcells.

It was the weather in the first place, thought Edith very drearily as she watched the rain beat against the window. If she and Richard had not been caught in a sudden shower to the utter ruin of her very prettiest dress, she would never have been irritable and quarreled with him about nothing at all, and she would not have expected him to take the fault upon himself when she alone—after the weather—was to blame. And now it had rained for nearly a week, and the inaction was driving her wild. She could only think, think and vainly try to overcome her pride and send for him.

For the thousandth time she drew from her dress his last letter and reread it:

Dearest—We have been friends and neighbors and sweethearts all our lives and should not let anything come between us. I love you, and if you will just send one word saying you want me I will come at your call and forget the nothing we quarreled about. Should we let anything so childish part us? I look for a word from you. If it does not come, I shall know that you really meant to break our engagement and shall of course not trouble you. But you couldn't have meant it, Edith? Fraternally yours,
RICHARD COPELAND.

That was all, but she had sent him no word, thinking that in time he would come anyhow, and then she would let him coax her out of her anger. But he had not come, and she could not fail to respect him for refusing to be played with.

So she was very wretched and blamed her own pride and the weather. The rain beat down warmly and intermittently, and all nature expanded and throve under its moist influence. Edith looked across the fields to the south to Richard's home, which one day was to have been also hers, and saw him out in the rain on his horse, coming from the town a few miles away. How often they two had ridden about the country together! And now it was all over. He would never come back to her—unless she sent for him. Could she do it? It was early in the afternoon, and she might send her little brother over with a note. She hesitated; then she went to her room and sat down to her desk. It would be a relief to write to him, even if she could not bring herself to send it to him.

Dear Richard—Will you come to see me tonight? I was horrid, and I am very sorry. If I had not been wet and cross I should not have thought of caring because you rode to town with Fay. Of course you could not help her overtaking you. She always was forward. Forgive me and come back. You know that—I love you—always. EDITH.

She sat looking at it. Then her heart misgave her. It had been two long months since they parted, and he might no longer care for her. He might care for Fay. The neighbors had said he had been to see her. The letter was altogether too unguarded. She could not tell him she loved him. So she carelessly thrust it into her dress with the letter from him.

She tried to busy herself about the house, but somehow she could not work. She was restless and felt as if her mother and sister saw it and would know that she fretted for Richard. She tried to read in her own room, but it seemed like a prison.

Along about 3 o'clock she felt as if the day had been years long. She could bear it no longer. She put on some heavy shoes and an old waterproof riding habit, wound her fair hair closely under a little cap and stood before the glass thinking what a fright she looked and rather rejoicing in the fact. What was the use of being beautiful when Richard no longer loved her?

She slipped out to the barn and saddled Ginger, her little mare, mounted and rode quickly out of the gate and northward, as she did not want to pass Richard's house. Her mother saw her ride off in the storm and wondered if the girl was going crazy, but was too late to call after her. At first Ginger wheeled and refused to believe that she was expected to splash her dainty hoofs through such pools of mud and water, but after a few snorts of protest Edith convinced her with the quirt that this wind and rain were really to be faced, and the little beast settled into a spiteful trot.

Edith rather rejoiced in buffeting the storm. The rain and wind cooled her hot cheeks, and the open air relieved the unbearable tension of her nervousness. For the first time since the trouble with Richard she allowed herself the unrestrained luxury of tears. Here out in the open, with the sting of raindrops in her face, she was free from prying eyes. She did not need to keep up her pride, and she could be as wretched as she really felt. She did not look about her, but rode mile after mile, letting the mare take her own course.

After riding an hour or so she noticed that the storm abated and, looking up, saw that the clouds were less dark. Here and there was a gleam of blue, though the warm wind still blew intermittent drops into her face. She drew her collar closely about her neck and pulled her cap over her eyes and rode on with her own thoughts.

At last an idea came to her. Why not phone to Richard—just call him up and talk to him in the old way about nothing in particular and, if he made it easy for her, ask him to come to see her that evening? Strong in this new resolve, she looked to see where she was and realized that after a long detour they were about a mile below Richard's house, which they must pass. She could not go back, for it was probably near evening. The sun threatened to break through the clouds near the horizon. The rain had entirely ceased. She felt tired, but happier and quiet after the relief of tears.

Then she remembered a way through Richard's fields that they had often taken. She would have to pass a bad slough, but that could not be helped. He must not see her in her present plight. She realized that her face was swollen and her eyes red with weeping and that she was covered with mud. Her hair was flying wildly, though the dampness always made it the curlier. She turned into the pasture after dismounting to open a heavy gate, and as she rode along she removed her cap and, transferring her hairpins to her mouth, let the reins fall on Ginger's neck while she shook out her long hair and prepared to coil it more closely. But Ginger gave a sudden jerk, and in calling "Whoa!" the pins fell from her mouth into the mud and water. Then she laughed long and heartily and gave the wind its will with her hair. No one would see her anyway.

As she neared the slough she felt very warm and unfastened her habit at the throat. Ginger was plunging and snorting through the mud and stopped once with a jerk that almost threw the girl from her saddle. The wind caught at her dress, and before she realized it the two luckless letters were spread out in the mud. It was no laughing matter, for Richard would be sure to find them, and the mud was so deep she could not possibly dismount. She drove Ginger as close to them as possible and was leaning over reaching for them so attentively that she did not see Richard till he rode up almost against her.

Her eyes met his, defiantly conscious of her floating hair and her soiled face and above all the telltale letters. She wished her writing was finer—she could see that hateful "I love you" from where she now was! He lifted his hat and was getting down to hand her the letters when she stopped him.

"Richard Copeland, you go right away. Don't touch them. I will get them myself."

"You can't. You'd get stuck in the mud. Let me."

"If you do, I'll—hate you."

"You do anyway, and, besides, I won't look at whatever it is you seem to value so." He coolly dismounted, but she sprang down ahead of him and snatched at them, sinking to her knees in the slush. Ginger started, and Richard called "Whoa!" but gave the poor beast a sly cut with his whip that sent her on a mad gallop for home. He held Colonel by the bridle. Edith faced him.

"Now, Edith," he said, "hate me or not. You will have to get on Colonel and be taken home. Come—dear."

"I'll die here first!" He mounted and, riding close to her, suddenly caught her in his arms and drew her struggling and angry to the saddle in front of him.

"Edith," he said, "I couldn't help seeing the 'I love you' on the letter you were so anxious about. Was it written for me?" Suddenly she felt that she could bear it no longer. She turned her face against his shoulder and cried, while he smoothed back her long hair and held her very close. Her pride was quite gone. She was in tears and a fright generally. She felt that it was positively a miracle that he could still love her. He kissed the only available place, which happened to be her left ear. Then he asked her again about the letter.

"I meant it for you," she owned, "but I couldn't send it, and I was miserable."

He laughed softly and bade her look up, and Colonel somehow understood that he was expected to go very, very slow.

Crow's Way of Opening Clams.

The crows that live along the seashore live on sea food. At times they show a gull's dexterity in picking eatables from the tossing water with their bills. Their ingenuity, however, is taxed by the hard shells of clams, which they can neither pry into nor break with their bills. Like some gulls, the bright crow will seize a clam and fly to a great height and drop it on a ledge of rock. That breaks the shell, and the crow gets the meat. Near Vancouver, B. C., the crow rides around on the backs of hogs that are rooting in the flow ground of the tide. The hogs crush the shells of clams and mussels in their jaws and then drop them on the ground in order to separate the meat from the shell. The crow jumps in and gets the meat for itself. On the other hand, the remarkable story comes from Africa that crows there carry stones to a considerable height above a nest of ostrich eggs and let them fall on the tough shells, and then feed on the exposed albumen.

His Poem on a Dog.

The ethereal being with the unshorn locks was shown into the editorial sanctum.

"I have written a poem on the dog," he said.

"Whose dog?" demanded the editor fiercely.

"It is not on any particular dog," faltered the poet.

"Do you mean to say that you took advantage of the dog because it was not particular and wrote your poem on it?"

"I am afraid that you do not understand me. I was inspired by the dog's fidelity"—

"If the dog was faithful, why should you hurt its feelings by writing a poem on it? Did you have the poor brute shaved and tattoo the verses on its back, or did you brand them on? Perhaps you"—

But the poet had fled.—London Tit-Bits.

THE SCHOONER.

Where the Fore and After Beats the Square Rigger.

The ability of the schooner to meet the requirements of present day conditions, while the square riggers have been found wanting, can be readily understood when we take into consideration the numerous advantages possessed by the fore and aft rig that are essential to the ideal carrier.

Operating expense, that prime factor in all transportation problems, is here reduced to a minimum, for there is no motive power so cheap as the free winds of heaven and no other craft so well adapted to utilize and control this force. The sails are of handy form and can be readily handled from the deck by a handful of men or with steam power if desired. The schooner can sail several points nearer the eye of the wind than a square rigger is able to do.

Built on the old clipper model, they sail like witches and owing to their peculiar constructions can be readily loaded and discharged. They require but little ballast and having no heavy top hamper can, if necessary to the trade, take on immense deck loads. In the lumber traffic of the Pacific northwest we find these vessels leaving port with huge deck loads towering ten to fifteen feet above the rail. Occasionally they get caught in a blow and have to sacrifice a portion of the deck load, but where one meets such a mishap dozens reach their designations safely and land their cargoes intact.—James G. McCurdy in Outing Magazine.

A GAME OF POKER.

It Was an Object Lesson on Playing Cards With Strangers.

A card sharp well known to the stewards of the great ocean liners was a passenger on a recent trip across. He received a line at Queenstown, which had the effect of keeping him out of the large games in the smoking room. He contented himself with penuchle and bridge at 25 cents a hundred points. On the evening before landing one of his bridge party, none of whom knew that he was a professional with a bad record, proposed changing the game to poker. "It's bad practice," said the card sharp, "to play poker with strangers. There's too much risk, but it's all right in this case." The others said there was no risk if a man had good sense and kept his eyes open. The deal fell to the professional, and when cards had been drawn by each man he said: "Now I'll show you how much you know. Mr. A, you have the winning hand. Mr. B, your three queens look good, but what show have they against Mr. C's four fives? And what good are they against A's four kings? Does it tally?"

It did, and A said, "Well, it's my pot."

"I was afraid that might happen, so I dealt myself a straight flush." He showed it, arose from his chair and said: "Give the steward what I put in. This was an object lesson—don't play poker with strangers."—New York Tribune.

The Barbecue.

The word "barbecue" is derived from the Spanish word "barbacao" and is a native Haitian term for a wooden framework supporting meat or fish to be smoked or dried over a fire. In its popular sense it means a large social or political entertainment in the open air at which sheep or oxen are roasted whole and all the feasting is on a most liberal scale. Georgia is probably the native home of the barbecue and is called the Barbecue State. Who prepared the first barbecue is unknown. Deer, bear and other game constituted the meat roasted in the barbecues of fifty years ago.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

The Butcher's Smock.

The butcher's smock was blue. It looked much neater than the white smocks of his friends, all smeared with dried blood. "Every butcher," said the man, "ought to wear a blue smock. Why? Because dry blood won't show on it. Dry blood turns bluish, and on a smock of this color it is invisible. I am descended from a long line of butchers, and from father to son the word has been passed down always to wear, for neatness' sake, a smock of blue."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Croutons.

To cut bread into dice before frying, if it is to be used as croutons, is not the most approved method. When done in this way it becomes very hard and indigestible. The bread should rather be cut into thin slices and then stamped out in circles a little larger than a quarter or cut into squares of about the same size or in oblongs two inches long and over one-half inch thick. These tossed into hot lard and taken out almost instantly in the frying basket are the most palatable.

Queen Marriages.

In southern India marriage with inanimate objects is not altogether unknown. A man who has lost two wives and wishes to marry another will go through a formal marriage ceremony with a plantain tree, which is afterward cut down. This stands for the third marriage, which is considered inauspicious, and the man feels free to make a fourth marriage with a third woman.

The Modern Version.

"I want my boy to be able to earn his own living."

"To earn it, Mr. Merger?"

"Well, to get it."—Washington Herald.

Hypocrisy is the necessary burden of villainy.—Dr. Johnson.

HE HAD HIS DOSE.

An Incident of the Terrible Battle of Montmirail.

In February, 1814, the French army made a heroic stand against the allied forces of Europe, and in one week retrieved for a short but glorious period its lost prestige. Though composed largely of half raw recruits, it escaped from the very center of 250,000 foes, attacked an army of 70,000 men, won 4 battles and captured 68 cannon, 5 generals and 28,000 prisoners!

After the terrible fight at Montmirail Major Bancel, staff surgeon to the guard, was attending the wounded as well as he could, close behind the columns still engaged. Looking up from one unfortunate man whose wounds he was dressing, he perceived within a short distance an old mounted chasseur of the guard, who was tranquilly smoking his pipe and watching the surgeon.

Bancel did not at first pay any attention to him. By and by he noticed the man again, still in the same posture, tranquilly smoking his pipe.

"What are you doing there?" cried the surgeon.

"Smoking," answered the man. "Does the major forbid me to smoke?"

"What!" returned the officer. "Aren't you ashamed to be loafing around here while your comrades are covering themselves with glory?"

The chasseur blew out a cloud of smoke and, driving his right spur into his steed, made him execute a half turn. Then he said, taking his pipe out of his mouth:

"Look, major. Don't you think I have got my dose as it is? Can I do anything more?"

The major looked. The chasseur's leg was shot off half way between the knee and the ankle, so that his left foot was hanging and dangling against his horse. The veteran's question required no answer. But it may be surmised what care and attention the surgeon lavished on the imperturbable chasseur.

LINCOLN'S GROCERY.

Result of One Partner's Hunger and the Other Partner's Thirst.

A giant in stature, he was as awkward as he was strong. His rustic appearance was enhanced by an ill fitting suit of homespun. Thus at the head of the ox team he made his debut in the outer world, without means, without education, without influence. This may seem a sorry beginning, but let it be remembered that if on that day he had graduated from Harvard in a fashionable coat the gates of history would probably have been closed against him.

Mr. Lincoln's first business venture resulted in downright failure. He formed a partnership with one Berry, under the firm name of Berry & Lincoln, to carry on a grocery, for the purchase price of which the firm note was given. Berry was a jolly, irresponsible soul, who was born thirsty and who gave his undivided attention to that part of the stock known as "wet groceries." Mr. Lincoln, on the other hand, having a keen appetite, devoted himself to the crackers and cheese, smoked herrings and other edibles at the dry end of the shop. This happy adjustment rivaled the familiar case of Jack Sprat and his congenial spouse, but the meager stock could not long withstand the inroads of hunger at the one end and thirst at the other, and a crisis came which required the sale of the remnant of stock. The purchaser defaulted, and Mr. Lincoln was left to pay all the liabilities—a task which plagued him for several years. Thereby he had impressed upon him a legal proposition that a partner is liable in solido.

It is related that Mr. Lincoln bought a barrel of a customer, in the bottom of which, among other rubbish, was found a copy of "Blackstone's Commentaries." This was a great find for the law student, but as the book thereafter engrossed his attention the grocery business collapsed. Thus ended the first lesson.—J. V. Quarles in Putnam's.

The Knock-out Blow.

The blow which knocked out Corbett was a revelation to the prize fighters. From the earliest days of the ring the knock-out blow was aimed for the jaw, the temple or the jugular vein. Stomach punches were thrown in to worry and weary the fighter, but if a scientific man had told one of the old fighters that the most vulnerable spot was the region of the stomach, he'd have laughed at him for an ignoramus. Dr. Pierce is bringing home to the public a parallel fact; that the stomach is the most vulnerable organ out of the prize ring as well as in it. We protect our heads, throats, feet and lungs, but the stomach we are utterly indifferent to, until disease finds the solar plexus and knocks us out. Make your stomach sound and strong by the use of Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and you protect yourself in your most vulnerable spot. "Golden Medical Discovery" cures "weak stomach," indigestion, or dyspepsia, torpid liver, bad, thin and impure blood and other diseases of the organs of digestion and nutrition.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" has a specific curative effect upon all mucous surfaces and hence cures catarrh, no matter where located or what stage it may have reached. In Nasal Catarrh it is well to cleanse the passages with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy fluid while using the "Discovery" as a constitutional remedy. Why the "Golden Medical Discovery" cures catarrhal diseases, as of the stomach, bowels, bladder and other pelvic organs will be plain to you if you will read a booklet of extracts from the writings of eminent medical authorities, endorsing its ingredients and explaining their curative properties. It is mailed free on request. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y. This booklet gives all the ingredients entering into Dr. Pierce's medicines from which it will be seen that they contain not a drop of alcohol, pure, triple-refined glycerine being used instead.

Dr. Pierce's great thousand-page illustrated Common Sense Medical Adviser will be sent free, paper-bound, for 21 one-cent stamps, or cloth-bound for 31 stamps. Address Dr. Pierce as above.

SONOMA INDEX-TRIBUNE

Sonoma, Sonoma County, Cal., June 8, 1907.

H. H. GRANICE, Editor.

Discipline and the State University.

If the impairment of good discipline is a just cause for dismissal from the University of California and is reason enough for the ousting of members of the faculty, President Wheeler himself should voluntarily sever his connection with the college at Berkeley and go to the school of Technology in Boston or some of the many other institutions who want him so badly in the East. Ever since Wheeler's coming to Berkeley there have been frequent squabbles and jealousies among the faculty and several very unpopular dismissals, which have tended to disrupt the student body and brought no good results in the departments affected or favorable comments from alumni and public. The latest matter of this kind has arisen in the quarrel between two professors in the German department and the subsequent dismissal of Martin Centner, an appointee of ex-President Kellogg and for many years an honored member of the faculty.

President Wheeler's importations may be brilliant scholars but if they do not get in touch with the student body and take a sympathetic interest in the progress of their classes, they fail in their purpose. Martin Centner is a gentleman and sympathetic instructor. He has had always a reputation for honor and highmindedness. His dismissal, and therefore, rightly called forth protest, and President Wheeler must now consider the grave charges which have been made by the ex-member of the faculty against the head of the German department. Wheeler probably took the word of the accuser without self-investigation and this has lead to the uncalled for action. The Pressdent should busy himself with just this kind of thing which frequently arises out of jealousies in his institution. He is there to investigate and not to leave everything (traveling and correspondence with Roosevelt excepted) to his underlings. The same trouble, dealt with in just such a manner, arose when Professor Syle was dismissed from Berkeley. Syle brooded over the injustice and said nothing, but Centner has spoken and the public demands that Wheeler take up the matter further. The taxpayers wish to know what truth there is in some of the accusations against the man who now holds the chair of German in the State University.

Exhibit No. 1.

Delphin M. Delmas came out of the West,
Out of the sunshine, as you might have guessed;
With flowers of speech came into the Thaw case,
Out of warm precincts into the law race.
Out from the Pacific to New York's Atlantic,
To meet hardened hearts and drive Jerome frantic;
To conjure the elements to thunder applause
And bring on a brain storm to blow all the Thaws;
The unwritten law to uphold most defiant
And then clear the air and also his client.
Such was his plan but his chances inflated
Were punctured most sadly by Jerome, underrated.
'Round Delphin M. Delmas were flowers of speech,
But they withered and scattered on Manhattan's beach,
And Delphin M. Delmas says, as he fumes,
This path of glory lead but to the Tombs.
Now in the Glass case in Frisco you'll find him,
Here we will leave him where Fate has assigned him.

The poor horses of San Francisco should have the sympathy and protection of every good citizen for the strike has brought greater work to them than before. Horses have played no small part in the upbuilding of the city but now they toil far into the night and Sundays in order that people may get about without walking. Before the strike the horses had working hours, but many of them are now out of their barns far after a tired animal should be. The Citizens Alliance is keeping watch for abuses and it is the most humane work this body can undertake, for some individuals never think of the dumb brute while they can collect dimes and quarters for the long pull to the Mission or Western Addition. The country equine, browsing on his grassy pasture, is probably all unconscious of his luck, but his less fortunate brother, perchance, may dream of the days when he knew nothing of cobblestones and car strikes.

There is no chance of a tie-up in the Postoffice department, as the Washington authorities cannot get twine.

Chief Justice Beatty, who had an encounter with a sprinkling cart, claims that the water wagon got on him which is much better than if he were reported on the water wagon.

A resume of the calendar day proceedings in the Superior Court was as follows:

In Judge Denny's department the motion for a change of venue and to strike out cost bill was dropped from the calendar in the suit of Pollitz vs. Wickersham to recover commission for the purchase of a big block of sugar stock.

The petition for an order to sell real property of the Congregational Church Society of Sebastopol was denied.

Official Paper of Sonoma.

FOURTH OF JULY AT NAPA.

Celebration to be Held Under the Auspices of the New Century Club.

There will be a big celebration in Napa on July 4th, under the auspices of the New Century Club, composed of the prominent women of that city. There will be two military bands, two balloon ascensions, athletic games, day fireworks and a grand ball in the evening. The ladies of Napa intend making this one of the most attractive natal day celebrations ever held. Quite a crowd will attend from Sonoma and vicinity. The advertisement appears elsewhere in these columns.

A Home Industry That Should be Encouraged.

Among the new industries started in this place the past year is that of the Sonoma Valley Cigar Factory, which is conducted by Joseph Gassner, an expert cigar maker, who was in business in San Francisco previous to the big fire. He is the manufacturer of "The Pride of Sonoma," one of the best ten cent cigars on the market today. We make the claim for this particular cigar because as a smoker we know what we are talking about. It will more than hold its own with the very best weeds shipped here from other places. The cigar factory conducted by Mr. Gassner is essentially a home enterprise and it should be liberally patronized by those of our business men who are in the retail trade. When you want an excellent cigar don't fail to ask for the "Pride of Sonoma." By doing so you not only speak for a good article but also put in a good word for a home enterprise.

Tree Squirrels Come High Now.

A. Predisina of Melitta, was arrested by Game Warden Ingalls last Saturday, charged with killing a tree squirrel. The offender against our stringent game law was taken before Judge Atchinson of Santa Rosa the same day in order that swift justice be meted out to him for his heinous offense. Like Abe Ruef, seeing that the law was dead against him, he wisely plead guilty to the charge and was fined $25. Predisina says he can now make a noise like a tree squirrel and twenty-five dollars all right, particularly when that man Ingalls happens around.

Re-Elected a Member of the Board of Education.

W. C. Nolan was re-elected a member of the County Board of Education by the Supervisors last Thursday, to succeed himself. E. Morris Cox, whose term expires this month, was retired, and O. F. Staton of Healdsburg, was elected to the position.

Earthquakes

The past week has been prolific of earthquakes and three shocks have been felt here since Tuesday. There was quite a heavy shock on Wednesday morning at 12:20, which was followed by a lesser temblor at about 4 A. M. Thursday night at 11 o'clock there was another vibration, but this latter hair-raiser was very slight.

The Daily Chronicle and Index-Tribune only $9 for the two newspapers.

The Convent entertainments have always been greatly appreciated by all those who had the good fortune to attend. Admission to the hall will be fifty cents. Tickets may be had at the Convent. After the entertainment there will be a social dance and refreshments will be served.

New Real Estate Firm.

H. H. Granice and F. A. Severy have entered into a copartnership in the real estate business, with the principal place of business at Sonoma. Parties desiring to list property for sale would do well to call upon them. The firm already has a few desirable ranches for sale, varying from $10,000 down. The firm will later on have branch offices in Oakland and San Francisco. The place of business for the present will be in the INDEX-TRIBUNE office.

Death at Agua Caliente.

Dr. George L. Cool, a practicing dentist of San Francisco, died at the Morris place, Agua Caliente, last Wednesday, of consumption. The deceased had been rusticating in this valley for three months in the hopes of regaining his health. He was the son of Dr. and Mrs. Wm. P. Cool of San Francisco and was aged 34 years.

Undertaker Bates took charge of the remains and had them shipped to the metropolis for interment Thursday.

A PRETTY HOME JUNE WEDDING.

Miss Bainia Bailey Becomes the Bride of Mr. Rockwell Chapman Last Sunday.

Mr. Rockwell Chapman, a rising young business man of this city, claimed for his bride on Sunday last, at 1 o'clock, Miss Bainia Bailey, one of Sonoma's most charming girls. The wedding took place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Bailey, in the presence of relatives and a few immediate friends of the contracting parties.

The Bailey home was prettily decorated with greens, pink and white being the color scheme. The ceremony took place under a floral arch and was performed by Rev. Lionel Rowe of the Methodist Episcopal Church, the wedding march being played by Mrs Rowe.

The bride, who is a handsome blonde, looked sweet and girlish in a beautiful gown of white chiffon over white silk. She carried white carnations. The bride was attended by Miss Pearl Bailey, who looked charming in a pretty dress of pink mull.

Mr. Pharoh Hedley acted as best man.

The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and costly presents.

The happy young couple took their departure on the four o'clock Northwestern Pacific train amid a shower of rice and old shoes for Santa Cruz, where they spent a brief honeymoon.

AGUA CALIENTE SPRINGS HOTEL.

Sixth Anniversary Largely Attended by People From Home and Abroad.

The sixth anniversary of the opening of the Agua Caliente Springs Hotel by Mr. and Mrs. Theodor Richards, last Saturday night, was a great success. The broad verandas and beautiful grounds surrounding the hotel were thronged with visitors throughout the evening while the floor of the dancing pavilion was packed with merry dancers all the time. The music rendered by the Mare Island Military Band of twenty-five pieces was all that could be desired by the devotees of Terpsichore.

Mr. Lambert of San Francisco, who is a guest at the Springs, did much to add to the pleasures of the evening. He is a noted comedian and did several stunts that put everybody in good humor.

At midnight supper was served after which the guests commenced departing for their homes. Sonoma was well represented at the opening which was one of the most successful ever conducted by the popular host and hostess of Sonoma Valley's leading resort.

A Sonoma Boy Abroad.

Doc Engler, son of Mr. and Mrs Geo. Engler of this place, who left Oakland for the Alaskan gold fields last week, writes under the date of the 2d inst., from Seattle, that he and his companions, Gus Cornelius and Wm. Chance, had arrived safely in that city where they expected to remain a few days. On Thursday last the party sailed away from Seattle en route to Nome, where, barring accidents, they will arrive about June 17th. From thence they will travel 2,000 miles down the Yukon river to Fair Banks, where Charley Anderson awaits to put them next to a fortune if such a thing is possible. Doc writes that this last stage of their journey will consume about a month of their time. He also states that there is quite a rush to Alaska and that the day he left for Seattle there were 1700 people bound for the alluring gold fields of that rich but inhospitable region.

THE CITY TRUSTEES IN JUNE SESSION.

Contracts for Water and Light Renewed — Anti-Dumping Ordinance Passed — Other Matters.

President Hotz of the Board of City Trustees called the members to order last Wednesday evening in regular monthly session. A full Board was present, with the exception of Trustee Bates.

The minutes of the last regular meeting, as outlined in these columns last month, were read and approved, after which the following bills were allowed and ordered paid:

J. H. Albertson, salary	$15 00
Sonoma Valley Water Co., water	15 00
L. Maffei, teaming	9 00
R. Quartaroli, cleaning ditches	8 50
Sonoma Valley Co., electric light	36 40
H. Castagnasso, sprinkling streets	83 00
Mrs. J. A. Poppe, merchandise	1 00
Joseph B. Small, salary	25 35
Peter Norrbom, labor	4 00

The retail liquor dealer bonds of James Modini and Giacomi Mazza were approved.

Ordinance No. 89, relating to the dumping of garbage in Mountain Cemetery or other public places, was put on its final passage and ordered published in the SONOMA INDEX-TRIBUNE.

The contract for electric lights was renewed for another month with the Sonoma Valley Company as was also the contract with the Sonoma City Water Company for water for street sprinkling, which was renewed for another six months.

The Demosthenes of Sonoma and El Verana, Messrs. Frank Sprague and Jack Daughney, addressed the the Board in regard to the slot machine ordinance passed last year. The gentlemen made a logical argument in favor of amending the ordinance so as to reduce the license for nickel-in-the-slot machines and permit them to be operated as before the passage of the "reform" ordinance. The matter was taken under advisement.

A communication from Mrs. Mattie A. Campbell was read by Clerk Small, requesting that certain rubbish be removed from the public streets.

Clerk Small was instructed by the Board to notify the Health Board that they must take some action in regard to abating the nuisance on First-street West being maintained by the Chinese tenants of the Aguillons, who are running the waste water from their wash house into the open ditch which runs along that thoroughfare to the detriment of the health of the town. The Board of Health was ordered to have the nuisance abated within two weeks.

The ordinance prohibiting the use of fireworks inside the incorporated limits of the town on July 4th was continued in effect for another six months.

The Board then adjourned.

Reception to ex-Governor's Wife.

The reception tendered Mrs. Geo. C. Pardee by the Sonoma Valley Womans' Club, in their club rooms last Saturday afternoon, was most enjoyable. Over fifty members and invited guests had the pleasure of meeting Mrs. Pardee, who is a most gracious and charming woman. The club rooms were artistically decorated for the occasion. Throughout the afternoon dainty refreshments were served.

R. E. Keogh, after a visit of ten days at the Granice home, where he was the guest of his mother, Mrs. R. J. Keogh, has returned to San Francisco.

A Hair Dressing

Nearly every one likes a fine hair dressing. Something to make the hair more manageable; to keep it from being too rough, or from splitting at the ends. Something, too, that will feed the hair at the same time, a regular hair-food. Well-fed hair will be strong, and will remain where it belongs—on the head, not on the comb!

Bosworth Place Sold.

R. S. Bosworth has sold his place in the extreme southwestern limits of town to Chas. Weber, who recently disposed of the old Lewis place on Second-street East. GLEN ELLEN

By Aurora.

Mail carrier Bonbright has had his cottage, on the Santa Rosa road, neatly painted.

Those who have fields of wheat and oats for hay, uncut, are jubilant as the weather is fine for the growth of the crops.

Mrs. Frank Burkhart, who has been very ill for over a year, has a tumor in the side. An operation is to be performed to relieve her of it.

Leopold Justi went to Oakland to attend to some important business matters Wednesday. While there he will visit his sister, Mrs. Merlinjones.

The Frideger place, located in the hills about four miles from Glen Ellen, has been purchased by a Doctor Frazer. There is a good vineyard on the property.

Mr. Edward Ellison, his wife and daughter, started for the home village of Mrs. Ellison's folks in Ohio, this Saturday morning. Their visit will last for three months.

The inquiry for farm property in this district is greater than usual this season. There are very few places for sale. The rumors about an electric road, although vague, may have something to do with this state of affairs.

BLEEDING A KING.

Louis XIV., a Greedy Physician and an Unscrupulous Surgeon.

In 1693, when Louis XIV. began to feel the first touches of age, his physicians ordered him to be bled once a month. That duty was of course intrusted to Marechal, his Irish surgeon.

There was at the time in Paris, says the British Medical Journal, a young brother of the craft who conceived the idea of making his fortune by bleeding the king. The enterprise was difficult, but he knew that the most solid doors can often be opened with a golden key.

Following the advice of Iago, he put money in his purse and sought an introduction to Antoine Daquin, the king's chief physician. The negotiation was conducted on a strict business footing. Daquin, who was known to love money, was told that 10,000 crowns were deposited with a notary who had instructions to transfer the sum to him as soon as the surgeon had got the job.

It was not an easy thing to manage, as Marechal never left the king. One day, however, he asked permission to leave Versailles for three days. Daquin seized the opportunity to introduce his protege, whom he had ready at hand for the purpose. Feeling the king's pulse one morning, as usual, he pretended to be alarmed at its strength and volume and ordered the illustrious patient to be bled forthwith. As Marechal was away, the king hesitated, but fear soon made him yield to his physician's proposal. The young surgeon bled the king, and Daquin got his money.

In the meantime a message had been dispatched for Marechal, who was not far off. He returned to Versailles in haste and was much surprised to find that the king, whom he had left in the best of health, had been bled. He was not on friendly terms with Daquin, and he quickly grasped the situation. He went to see the young surgeon and forced him to disclose the whole plot.

When the king learned the truth, he flew into a terrible rage, ordered Daquin to be arrested and placed the matter in the hands of the council of state. That obsequious body, after a very short deliberation, unanimously voted that the physician who had trafficked in the blood of the king deserved death. The royal wrath, however, subsided to some extent, and he graciously spared Daquin's life, but deprived him of his office and exiled him from the court to Quimper-Corentin. The too greedy physician did not long survive his disgrace.—London Standard.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

Cheerfulness is a great aggravation to an angry man.

Nearly every one thinks he is a good judge of human nature.

You can't do anything very well if you don't want to do it.

It is not difficult to prove you are right from your own point of view.

How people economized in the old days! But not many people do it now.

Some men would do wonderful things if some little thing were not in the way.

When a boy wants a favor from his parents he asks his father's permission and tells his mother he is going to do it.

The average friendship is wrecked upon the fact that the average person's idea of a friend is some one he can impose upon.—Atchison Globe.

Burro Drivers Carry Candles.

In Mexico all vehicles, be they handcart, automobile or anything between, must carry a light at night. This rule or law is rigidly enforced. Even the drivers of the poor little burro or mule carts, on their two wheels, must carry a light. So, rather than buy lanterns, which cost money, they take a dip candle, and wrapping it in a bit of newspaper to shield it from the wind carry it in their left hand as they drive along homeward from work after evening has fallen. The effect is striking, as the light falling strongly on the Indian driver throws the face of the man into strong relief against the darkness. —Modern Mexico.

English Jurors' Remuneration.

The scale of remuneration of English common jurymen is absurd. In a civil case in England a common juryman is allowed 5 shillings ($1.25) a day for "a view"—that is, for inspecting any property or thing in dispute—but otherwise he is, in law, not entitled to any remuneration. It is usual, however, in the high court to give him a fee of 1 shilling and in the counties 8 pence. Special jurymen receive much higher remuneration. The fee in the county court is 1 shilling a case, in the mayor's court 2 pence and in the London sheriff's court 4 pence.—Chambers' Journal.

Not Hopeful.

"'Tis a fine, elegant husband you have, ma'am," said Maggie. "Him and me was talkin' about Ireland this mornin'. He's traveled as far as many a gentleman. And there ain't many husbands as good to their wives, ma'am. Look how he brings you lettuces and things from the market. But dear, dear! That kind never lives long."—Newark News.

Independent Criticism.

A little girl sat gazing fixedly at the new bonnet of one of her mother's visitors until the caller smilingly asked, "Do you like it, my dear?"

The child innocently replied: "Yes, I do. Mamma and Aunt Milly said it was a perfect fright, but it doesn't frighten me a bit."

He who commits an injustice is ever made more wretched than he who suffers it.—Plato.

Don't!!!

Don't let your child suffer with that cough when you can cure it with Ballard's Horehound Syrup, a sure cure for Coughs, Bronchitis, Influenza, Croup and Pulmonary Diseases. Buy a bottle and try it.

Galiano's Quinine Hair Tonic.

Joe Galiano, at First Street East, Pinelli building, has introduced into Sonoma a hair tonic, called Quinine Tonic, which is a wonderful remedy for the prevention of baldness. Mr. Galiano has had many years experience under a first-class physician in Europe. A great number of cases of baldness are caused by indigestion, and not as is presumed, by a disease of the scalp. It is not claimed that Quinine Tonic will grow hair on a bald head, as a number of fake tonics are advertised to do, but it is claimed and guaranteed that Quinine Tonic will stop the hair from falling out, and if used twice a week will clear the head from dandruff which will not return as long as the Tonic is used. Quinine Tonic is composed of the five following articles: Pure Alcohol, Quinine, Sulphur, Glycerine and Tumeric. If the Tonic is used and not found as represented, Galiano will refund the money. The Quinine Tonic will also save the trouble of shampooing the hair. This Tonic is for sale at both drug stores in Sonoma.

A "Jumbie Bird."

In the West Indies is found a bird called the sunset bird, because half an hour before sunset and half an hour before sunrise it utters its peculiar cry of "Soleil coucher!" The natives call it a "jumbie bird" (a bird possessed of the devil) and say that to kill it would bring death to its slayer. Another bird found in the same region is the "Soufriere bird," which makes its home near the volcano of Soufriere, and among the natives there is a strong belief that the first individual to see this bird will die, while the most horrible torture by evil spirits awaits the man who kills it.—Minneapolis Journal.

Call Early For Good Ones.

At the end of a big ball one of the guests went into the cloakroom at 3 in the morning to put on his things, and the attendant came forward with a coat.

"That isn't my coat," said the guest. "Mine is a perfectly new one."

"A new one? Oh, I haven't any new coats left after half-past 12."—Sourire.

The Human Brain.

The human brain has not steadily increased since paleolithic times, and as Professor Lankester tells us, by way of concrete illustration, the brain of Isaac Newton was not much larger than that of an Australian black.—London Outlook.

Every Man His Own Doctor.

The average man cannot afford to employ a physician for every slight ailment or injury that may occur in his family, nor can he afford to neglect them, as so slight an injury as the scratch of a pin has been known to cause the loss of a limb. Hence every man must from necessity be his own doctor for this class of ailments. Success often depends upon prompt treatment, which can only be had when suitable medicines are kept at hand. Chamberlain's Remedies have been in the market for many years and enjoy a good reputation. They sell for 25 cents a bottle.

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for bowel complaints.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for coughs, colds, croup and whooping cough.

Chamberlain's Pain Balm (an antiseptic liniment) for cuts, bruises, burns, sprains, swellings, lame back and rheumatic pains.

Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets for constipation, biliousness and stomach troubles.

Chamberlain's Salve for diseases of the skin.

One bottle of each of these five preparations costs but $1.25.

"Plugging" a Hotel Guest.

The hotel detective stepped out of the elevator and walked over to the counter.

"Well, I plugged him," he said.

"Plugged him? Who? What for? Where did you hit him?" quickly asked a friend who was standing by.

"Didn't hit him anywhere. Just plugged the keyhole of his door. Never hear of plugging before? When we have a guest whom we suspect is getting ready to leave without settling or whose credit is exhausted and fails to settle up, we just wait till he leaves his room and plug the keyhole in his door. Then he has to settle up or leave his baggage. The plug fits over the end of a key. It is placed in the lock and turned. The key is then withdrawn, leaving the plug in the door."—Kansas City Star.

An Oversight.

When Chapple got up the other morning he wandered around his apartments in his pretty pink pajamas, the very picture of woe.

"What's the matter, sir?" inquired his valet.

"I don't know, Alphonse," he groaned. "I passed a most unhappy night."

Alphonse looked him over carefully.

"Oh, sir," he exclaimed, "I know what was the matter! The trouserines of your pajamas were not creased. You must be more careful, sir. Those I had prepared for you were hanging across the foot of the bed."—Bohemian Magazine.
